"Red Beacon" Jing'an Sculpture Park, Shanghai, China

© Dave Bruel Dave Bruel

Reference data

- Building activity
  Wood protection , Wood protection- preventive / controlling
- Object type
  Schools / universities / museums , Other public buildings
- Area
  40,000 running metres of Chinese pine
- Object address
  , Jingan Qu, Shanghai Shi
- Date / Completion
  2010
- Architect
  Arne Quinze
- Viewing possible?
  No

Description

Jing’an is one of ten inner districts of the Chinese city of Shanghai.The World Expo 2010 took place in Shanghai under the theme “Better City – Better Life”. Following the exhibition, the authorities of Jing’an district organised China’s first state-sponsored public international sculpture project.The Belgian concept artist Arne Quinze designed a 55-tonne wooden sculpture for the occasion, dubbing it “Red Beacon”. The work of art is 80 metres long, 30 metres wide and 11 metres high.

Reference

Problem

'The sculpture &#34

Product systems / sizes used

› Induline P-360

Art. No. 3201

› Induline T-750 Plus

Art. No. 3400

Impressions

©

©

©

Further information can be found on:

https://www.remmers.co.uk/en_GB/referenceDetail/9030