Description

The Hagn family has been producing and selling wine in Mailberg, Lower Austria, for over 300 years. The family business cultivates around 50 hectares of vineyards on the Hundschupfen, Mailberg's most prominent and best-known site. The space is directly adjacent to the company headquarters, which employs more than 50 staff.

Problem

The Hagn family commissioned the conversion of a former storage depot for the delivery, production and distribution of red and white wine. The project called for the installation of an industrial floor that could meet the hygiene requirements of the food production sector and the loads exerted by the transport vehicles. The decision was taken to use a chemically and mechanically resilient, pigmented epoxy coating that fulfils all the physical and hygienic criteria.
