Description

Ma#ák is a Czech family business that has been selling wines from near the Ch#iby Mountains since 1992. The vineyards cover a total area of almost 25 hectares. As one of the most renowned wine merchants in the country, the company stakes its continued success on high-quality production. For this reason, refurbishment work was commissioned in the production facilities and the wine cellar in 2017.

Problem

The floors in the production facility and the wine cellar are subjected to both chemical and physical stresses on a daily basis. Wine, cleaning agents and the constant dropping and moving of barrels and trolleys place a strain on the floor surface. The floors in the existing production facility and in the basement of a production hall had to be renewed. The existing floor structures were reconstructed and replaced with a new surface layer. The selected system is characterised by its high mechanical and chemical resistance.
